

Last Man Standing

This game is a fun way to start or finish a lesson. It is quite competitive and so it should create a good atmosphere in the classroom.

'Last Man Standing' tests pupils' observation and listening skills, and it should allow them to release some energy.

It is suitable for children aged 7+ and requires a large space.

Instructions:

- 1) Get the pupils to walk around the room.
- 2) Ask the pupils to get into groups of three, for example. Any students who are not in a group of three are therefore eliminated.
- 3) Continue this until there is a winner.

For variety, change the instructions to get the pupils thinking on the spot. For example - 'Get into groups with people of the same hair colour'. This will challenge pupils' observation and spontaneity skills.